A SUCCESS!

THE ROSARY

By Florence L. Barclay

THE story of a young artist, a worshipper of the beautiful, who sees, shining through the features of a woman without claims to physical charms, the illuminating beauty of her soul. The girl, however, realizing his devotion to the beautiful, rejects his advances, refusing to allow him to make what she considers a sacrifice. From this point on to the romantic ending, the love story is worked out in a manner at once charming and convincing.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have ready "Old Boston Days and Ways," by Mary Caroline Crawford, of which Thomas Wentworth Higginson says: "It is especially rich in gossip involving her own sex, the absence of which makes many of the books of her predecessors now appear so dull; . . . this new Crawford volume has without apparent difficulty included thirteen of such portraits . . . After all it is well that women have come to do their own editing, and to provide also their own illustrations."

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY publish this week "The German Element in the United States," by Albert Bernhardt Faust, assistant professor of German in Cornell University; "Greek Lands and Letters," by Professor Francis G. Allinson, of Brown University, and Mrs. Anne C. E. Allinson; "Speeches and Addresses, 1884-1909," by the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge; "American Education," by Dr. Andrew S. Draper, Commissioner of Education for the State of New York; "Terry's Mexico," a new guide-book for travellers, by T. Philip Terry; "Lyrics of Life," by Mrs. Florence Earle Coates; "European Hero Stories," by Miss Eva March Tappan; and a new edition of Taswell-Langmead's "English Constitutional History."

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have published "The Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy and the History of Christian Science," by Georgine Milmine, who has devoted years of careful research to the subject; also, "The Story of the Negro," by Booker T. Washington, a history of the negro race, commencing with its home in Africa and following up with its immigration and subsequent development in America. They have also just ready two new Rackham books. Both of them are of that imaginative type among the classics which seem to yield Mr. Rackham a peculiarly fertile field for his delightful talent as an illustrator—Grimm's "Fairy Tales" and Fouqué's "Undine." The edition of the latter is a new translation of this old classic by W. L. Courtenay. The Rackham illustrations for both books are in color and black and white, in the Grimm the colored pictures amounting to about fifty.

JOHN LANE COMPANY have just issued, in connection with the bicentenary of Dr. Samuel Johnson, "Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Thrale," compiled from newly discovered mss. by A. M. Broadley, including the mss. "Journal of Mrs. Thrale's Welch Tour with Johnson in 1774," with an introduction by T. Seccomb. Mr. Broadley has secured new and unpublished letters to Mrs. Thrale from Oliver Goldsmith, James Boswell, Fanny Burney, Elizabeth Montague and many others of the famous Streatham coterie which played so important a part in the life of Samuel Johnson. Another important work covering about the same period is "The Last Journals of Horace Walpole," edited by A. Francis Steuart, who has furnished many new notes. The two volumes are profusely illustrated with portraits of famous people. Just ready is "France during the Directoire," in which Alfred Allinson describes the turbid years from 1795 to 1799, when the French people, freed from the rule of kings, raged in ungoverned folly and license, and when rural France held to the doctrines of "Gracchus" Babeuf, which were the forerunners of modern socialism. Illustrations from old prints and books of the period, many of them from private collections, add unusual value to the volume.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Ayscough, J., pseud. San Celestino. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 346 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

By the author of "Marotz" and "Dromina," who is a distinguished Catholic who prefers to remain unknown. The hero of San Celestino lived in the time of Dante. He was one of twelve sons and very early chose to be a hermit. He founded the order of the Celestino. He was made Pope, but the burden was too great. Later he was crucified head down. The book is not fiction and not history. There is no love story. Over six centuries ago the sorrows ended of this man of highest ideals, whose only idea of failure was to fail of pleasing God.

Barclay, Mrs. Florence Louisa Charlesworth. The rosary. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 389 p. D. cl., $1.35 net.

By the author of "The wheels of time," who is a sister of Mrs. Ballington Booth. The rosary is a song which was sung by an original, helpful, lovable woman of thirty, who awakens her old-time friend of twenty-seven to his great love for her. She refuses to marry him because he is "a mere boy," a painter passionately fond of beauty, and she is plain and afraid he will regret this fact later. He goes away; she travels through the world. An accident makes him blind; she comes as nurse, but he is determined she shall not come back from pity. By stratagem the nurse at last breaks down his decision. Plays in London and in Scotland among the aristocrats.

Barr, Mrs. Amelia Edith Huddleston. The house on Cherry Street; front, by Z. P.

Nikolaki. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1909. c. 375 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of Colonial New York when George III. was king and New Yorkers were very English. Piracy was no disgrace, and men of high degree were making fortunes. A Dutch captain and his plodding wife and their progressive daughter are chief actors. Her lover, an Englishman, owns the house on Cherry Street, and its surroundings of grandeur in those days are graphically described. Alexander Hamilton argues a case on journalism and the persecution of the printer Zender also is an incident. The budding power of a free press astonished the inhabitants. The Dutch captain invested his riches in a newspaper.

Beeckman, Ross. The last woman; front, by Howard Chandler Christy; il. by Bert Knight. N. Y., W. J. Watt & Co., [1909.] c. 317 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Story of an immensely wealthy man, his lovely but haughty and high-tempered daughter, and a young man of many millions, between whom and the daughter there is a sober sort of love affair and the prospect of marriage some day. The father needs a trifle of twenty million dollars to tide him over a few days, the young man is perfectly willing to let him have it, but the father proposes they tell the daughter that the condition upon which he insists is that she shall consent to an immediate marriage. Then follow many incidents and complications. Scene is laid in New York and Montana.

Beethoven, Ludwig van. Piano compositions; ed., [with introd.,] by Eugen d'Albert. In 2 v. v. 1. Bost., Oliver Ditson Co., 1909. c. 18+146 p. por. 4°, (Musicians' lib.) cl., $2.50; pap., $1.50.

The musical text is prefaced by a description, in English and German, of the pieces included by d'Albert, translated by Charles Fonteyn Manney, and a bibliography (1 p.) of the works and writings on Beethoven in English, French and German.

Bernstein, E: Evolutionary socialism: a criticism and affirmation (Die voraussetzungen des sozialismus und die aufgaben der sozialdemokratie); tr. by Edith C. Harvey. N. Y., Benjamin W. Huebsch, 1909. 23+224 p. D. (Socialist lib.; ed. by J. Ramsay McDonald.) cl., *$1 net.

This book is an exposition of the theoretical and political tendencies of the German social democratic revisionists. Mr. Bernstein refuses to accept a final aim for social democracy, but believes in the socialistic movement, i.e., a changing or evolutionary march forward of the working classes, who must work out their salvation through a true democracy, rather than by a social cataclysm or revolution.

Bigelow, J: Retrospections of an active life.

In 3 v. v. 1, 1817-1863; v. 2, 1863-1865; v. 3, 1865-1866. N. Y., Baker & Taylor Co., 1909. c. *14+645; 7+607; 7+694 p. pls. por. Q. cl., $12 net, boxed.

This venerable patriot was born in Malden, New York, just ninety-two years ago. Beginning his career as a lawyer, he speedily became a journalist and while a very young man became one of the proprietors and editors of the Evening Post under the direction of William Cullen Bryant. As consul to France, his success in frustrating the attempts of the Confederates to build a navy in France was of well nigh incalculable value. Later as Minister to the same Court he served his country with conspicuous ability. His retrospections cover a period of fifty years. The work contains the most interesting portions of Mr. Bigelow's correspondence with William H. Seward, Secretary of State, Drouyn de Lhuys, Minister of Foreign Affairs at the French Court, and with John Bright, Richard Cobden, John Lathrop Motley and other highly distinguished personages. The book is rich in anecdotes, letters and familiar notices of such notables as Thackeray, Dickens, The Prince of Wales (now Edward VII.), Delane, of the Times, Alexandre Dumas, Beranger, Lord Lytton, Charles Sumner, Preston King, Thurlow Weed, James Bowen, etc.

Birch, Una. Anna Van Schurman; artist, scholar, saint; with portraits. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 11+204 p. O. cl., $2 net.

Anna Maria Van Schurman was born in Cologne, in 1607, of Dutch parents. The Spanish occupation and cruelties of Alva had forced the family to emigrate from Antwerp, where Anna afterwards lived the greater part of her life. She was a very learned and religious woman who had much fame during her life as an artist and writer. Her friendship was sought by the greatest people of her time, such as Descartes, Richelieu, Queen Christina of Sweden, and many others. She died in 1678. List of her works (1 p.). Bibliography (2 p.). Index.

Block, Rudolph Edgar, ["Bruno Lessing," pseud.] Jake—or Sam. N. Y., Desmond Fitzgerald, Inc., [1909.] c. 44 p. il. D. bds., 50 c.

Bond, Alexander Russell. The Scientific American boy at school. N. Y., Munn & Co., Inc., 1910, [1909.] c. '09. 12+338 p. il. O. cl., $2.

A sequel to "The Scientific American boy." Continues the narrative and describes the construction of various devices and apparatus with particular reference to outdoor use. The constructions are fully within the powers of the average boy and the instructions are so clear that there can be no failure if attention is paid to detail.

Bond, Alexander Russell, comp. and ed. Handy man's workshop and laboratory; 370 illustrations. N. Y., Munn & Co., Inc., 1910, [1909.] c. '09. 9+467 p. O. cl., $2.

The Scientific American about a year ago opened a department devoted to the interest of the handy man who works with tools. Amateur mechanics and professional men sent in suggestions. Resourceful men showed their aptness at doing things about the house, in the garden, on the farm, in mending automobiles, etc. This material is here gathered into a book with much that overflowed the capacity of the Scientific American, but was too valuable to cast aside.

Mr. Brunner has spent twenty years in hunting and living out of doors, and brings a vast quantity of knowledge to bear upon his subject. The book is a guide to the haunts and habits of wild game interpreted by their tracks. The age, sex, speed, mood, destination, and many more interesting things can be determined by a close study of an animal's tracks on snow or ground. All this is what can be learned from the present volume.

Bushnell, Mrs. Belle. John Arrowsmith—planter; with il. by Walter Biggs. Cedar Rapids, Ia., Torch Press, 1910, [1909.] c. '09. 466 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Louisiana at periods just preceding and during the War forms the setting of Mrs. Bushnell's romance of love and conflict. The ancestral home of the Arrowsmiths on the Atchafalaya makes a fitting background for John Arrowsmith, the central figure and one of the true noblemen of the Southern cause. The dark war clouds, and the call and response to arms; the making of the first Confederate flag; these and many another great fact help in the making of the tale.

Caffin, C: H: The story of Dutch painting. N. Y., Century Co., 1909. c. 11+210 p. pls. O. cl., $1.20 net.

The Dutchmen of the seventeenth century developed a new school of painting whose history is closely interwoven with the story of the lives and fortunes of the Dutch. Mr. Caffin tells of this connection and what the artists accomplished in portraiture, landscape, and in the representation of indoor and outdoor life of the people, why they chose these subjects and why they treated them as they did. Book is illustrated by a number of half-tone reproductions of famous Dutch pictures.

Calderwood, W. L. The salmon rivers and lochs of Scotland. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 10+442 p. pls. maps, O. cl., *$6 net.

The author of the "Life of the salmon" and "Mussel culture and bait supply" gives in this volume not only descriptions of rivers and lochs of Scotland where the angler for salmon may cast his line, but, also, refers to anything which suggests the conservation or improvement of salmon fisheries. There are maps of the leading rivers with delineation of fisheries. Records of annual catches and interesting "fish stories" that are true are given here and there. It gives an excellent idea, especially through the fine illustrations of some of the most beautiful portions of this country. Appendix and index.

The author and her niece made a journey down the Mackenzie River from Athabasca Landing in Alberta, Canada, to the Arctic Ocean and back by Peace River. This is a most unusual trip, involving canoe and scow travel and other unconventional conveyances. Miss Cameron proved an interested and keen observer and her account of Indian life, trading and missionary stations, scenery and incidents of her voyage are very vivid. She devotes several pages to routes of travel with cost.

Carus, Paul. The pleroma; an essay on the origin of Christianity. Chic., Open Court Publishing Co., 1909. c. 6+163 p. D. cl., $1.

Pleroma is Greek for fulfillment. Points out the remarkable parallels between Christianity and other religions. Everywhere a religion of universal love will be preached and will hold up the ideal of a divine Savior be he called Christ, or Buddha, or the Prophet, or the Manifestation of God. As in all world religions there are certain features in Christianity which are rooted in the universal laws of cosmic existence. He has investigated the origin of Christianity "as a botanist would study the growth of a tree."

Author is assistant secretary of the Concrete Association of America. He describes the unlimited possibilities of the artistic treatment of concrete. He takes for granted the reader knows nothing whatever about the material, and he explains each progressive step in various operations in closest detail. He has followed the Portland cement concrete industry for seven years. This branch of art appeals specially to amateurs, as it is throughout a cold process, doing away with the kiln firing and its uncertainty and expense.

De Morgan, W: Frend. It never can happen again. N. Y., Henry Holt & Co., 1909. c. 12+688 p. D. cl., $1.75.

This new book of Mr. De Morgan's was issued on November sixteenth, the author's seventieth birthday, which "never can happen again," neither can the particular complication related in the story, involving a point of law depending on the passage of the "Deceased wife's sister marriage act" in England. Lizarann, the small slum child, is one of Mr. De Morgan's most delightful creations, and with Blind Jim, her father, really form the central interest of the book, though two other stories run through it.

Lanciani, Rudolfo Amedeo. Wanderings in the Roman Campagna; profusely illustrated. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 13+378 p. maps, O. $5 net, boxed.

Professor Lanciani, author of "Ancient Rome in the light of recent discoveries," "Pagan and Christian Rome," "New tales of old Rome," etc., here tells of the Roman Campagna, with its natural beauty and picturesqueness, its rich historic association and its notable ruins of Roman days. The introductory chapter is on The Land of Saturn, and then follow chapters on the The kingdom of Alba, Tusculum and Frascati, The kingdom of Turnus, The coast of the Volscians, The Pelasgic cities, The Fines Tiburtium, The borderland of Etruria, and The harbor of Rome. The illustrations from photographs add greatly to the interest of the work. Index.

Lathbury, Eva. The sinking ship. N. Y., Henry Holt & Co., 1909. c. 326 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A popular actress at the height of her success is overcome by the thought of what unnatural, foolish things she is acting, things that do not help to good living and high ideals. She feels the power the stage should be and proceeds to get a play that will elevate mankind. This play is written by a young man who takes his inspiration from the actress. Some very frank talks on the present frivolity of the world are woven into the plot. The heroine is a little high-strung, the hero very romantic.

Marshall, W: Vickroy. A curb to predatory wealth. N. Y., R. F. Fenno & Co., [1909.] c. 135 p. D. cl., $1.

Points the lesson that one part of society cannot enjoy a surfeit of ease and wealth unless another part endures a surfeit of suffering and wretchedness. A realignment of social conditions is necessary. The remedy presented will inevitably correct the tendency to forage for gain upon one's fellows. As a matter of self-interest it will be explained how much better it is to refrain rather than engage in combinations to exploit the public.

Author explains that true temperance is as compatible with the use of wine, beer and other fermented beverages as with any article of daily diet. He recommends beer as a mild stimulant, supplying one of the strongest cravings of man's nature. He then proceeds to explain the manufacture of beer. The laws of the states properly enforced would provide good liquor, and the people are learning steadily that there is a right and wrong use of such liquor.

An army is only as strong as its weakest man, and the weakest man, if improperly fed, is the forerunner of defeat. This little manual gives details for the proper feeding of soldiers, with proportions of different foods needed to give necessary variety as well as nourishment. Menus and receipts with these proportions in view are given, as well as directions for the keeping of the food. Troop "G," 9th Cavalry, U. S. A., is used as a model.

Perkins, Jane Gray. The life of the Honorable Mrs. Norton; with portraits. N. Y., Henry Holt & Co., 1909. 14+312 p. O. cl., *$3.50 net.

Caroline Norton was the granddaughter of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and one of a large family of talented and beautiful children, whom misfortune seemed to mark from the first. Forced to support herself and later, her husband, she spent herself in literary labors. Although she had grown fond of her husband his continued harshness led at last to an inevitable separation, with the famous lawsuit which followed. Her second marriage was with Sir William Stirling-Maxwell, and after three months of happiness she died. List of her songs and index.

Rinehart, Mary Roberts. When a man marries; with il. by Harrison Fisher and Mayo Bunker. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill Co., [1909.] c. 354 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

By the author of "The man in lower ten," etc. In the midst of a dinner party the New York health authorities carry off the Japanese butler, thinking he has smallpox. The guests are all quarantined and are forced to do all the house work, the servants having fled at the first alarm. Complications arising from mysterious thefts, and the fact that one of the girls impersonates the host's wife make a most amusing story whose mystery is only unravelled in the last chapters. Under the title "Seven days" the book has been dramatized and is being played at the Astor Theatre.

Author is Lady Margaret Professor, Oxford. He does not approve of the book he criticizes. He feels the book must be directly resisted and that with some plainness of speech. The last chapter but one of his book is headed "Marcion." It takes up and endorses that writer's attack upon the God of the Old Testament, and makes a sweeping denouncement of the whole idea of an omnipotent and beneficial Creator. He takes away all faith and leaves nothing in its place.

Santley, Sir C. Reminiscences of my life. N. Y., Brentano's, 1909. 14+319 p. pors. O. cl., *$4 net.

Written by Sir Charles Santley, the famous English baritone. The author writes at the age of 74, and his reminiscences cover a period of active life in his profession of over fifty-five years. The book is replete with anecdotes of his contemporaries, such as Fanny Kemble, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Sims Reeves, Lord Leighton, Irving, and others. In the discussion of his art the author confesses frankly that he belongs to the old school, and that he finds little or no virtue in Wagner. Index.

The chapters of this book by the author of "Brain and personality" and "What is physical life?" first appeared in Everybody's Magazine. He lets biology explain all in man that rests on his physical existence, but he points out that what makes man different from all the animals cannot be explained by biology. The power by which man controls the forces of nature, the imagination by which he thinks out great inventions, rests on something that cannot be explained materially, and only a higher mind than his own can explain the mind of "homo sapiens."

The author was in Africa during the Boer war and was taken prisoner and later exchanged. The book is dedicated to her sister, Countess Howe, whose death was doubtless due to the breakdown her health suffered in her labors in connection with the Yeomanry hospitals. The author was a personal friend of Dr. Jameson, and gives "first hand" information of the Jameson raid. Appendices and index.

Book describes in untechnical language the origin, development and treatment of the diamond, the sapphire, and other precious stones as well as some of the semi-precious stones. The art of mounting gems is somewhat elaborately covered, a chapter of folklore gives some of the superstitions regarding them, while another chapter is devoted to collections of gems in museums.

Wyld, H. Cecil Kennedy. Elementary lessons in English grammar. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,)] 1909. 224 p. D. cl., 50 c.

Author is Baines professor of English language in the University of Liverpool. The aim of the book is to give a clear statement of the chief elementary ideas connected with grammar, so that beginners may have a definite grasp of the subject. To gain this end some of the expositions are repeated several times in different words to impress them upon the child. English is treated as a spoken language throughout, so no attention is paid to such spelling rules as are frequently included in works of this kind.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 4, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE IMPORTATION OF BINDINGS.

DURING the copyright campaign the friends of copyright opposed any further extension of the manufacturing clause, and particularly the proposed modification which made copyright dependent upon binding, a question really extraneous to the publication of a book, since binding may be in cloth or paper and a book may be rebound in quantities or in single copies. It was foreseen that the enforcement of this provision as a sine qua non of copyright would lead to indefinite complications and serious questions of property rights.

This prophecy has been promptly fulfilled in a case just occurring at the New York Custom House. Copies of a copyright edition of the well-known Catholic Standard Prayer Book, "the Key of Heaven," were sent abroad for binding or rebinding, and on their return were prohibited entrance into the United States under the manufacturing provision of the new copyright code. The Attorney-General had no other alternative under this provision than to declare the books inadmissible, and now comes the question of the future ownership and disposition of the prohibited books.

The Binder's Union will cite this case in support of their position that such a clause ought to be included in the copyright act under the precedent of the type-setting provisions. But it is at least doubtful whether this tariff feature, for such it is, should be mixed up with the copyright bill. It is in fact a tariff feature carried to the ultimate of absolute prohibition, and speaking for the publishing trade we can only reiterate the protest that it has no place as a condition of copyright.

Another serious restriction as to the importation of bound or rebound books is contained in a so-called "joker" in the tariff bill, i.e., a clause added in the Payne bill, (Schedule M, 416,) to that section of the Dingley tariff providing a duty of 25 per cent. on books, etc., which was not understood or appreciated at the time of its passage. It was supposed that the duty on books remained substantially unaltered, but now the Board of General Appraisers has held that the additional phrase "all the foregoing wholly or in chief value of paper" will subject bound books to a higher duty if bound in leather, silk, or other material so valuable that the value of the binding is greater than the value of the sheets bound. Thus a book bound in leather would be required to pay 40 per cent. as a manufacture of leather, and a book bound in silk, 60 per cent. as a manufacture of silk. It seems probable that the clause was intended to have this effect, and though its origin is not known, it may be the same as the prohibitive feature as to binding in the copyright code.

Publishers indeed are pretty badly treated by their home government in the so-called interest of labor. Tariff burdens on material, added duties on books sent abroad for a special binding, copyright prohibitions, in the case of books and postal restrictions in the case of periodicals, make the life of an American publisher a perplexity beyond that of any of his brethren in foreign countries, however despotic they may be.

It is evident that the duty on wood pulp, even as reduced, is not to be left undisturbed, as Representative Mann, who was chairman of the special committee on wood pulp and print paper, during the last session, intends to make a fight for the provision originally reported by him and not accepted by the full Committee on Ways and Means.

THE many friends of Mr. Growoll, managing editor of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, who have not already heard of the accident to him, will regret to learn that on Saturday last, on his way to the office, he met with an accident, fracturing the knee-pan, which keeps him in hospital rest for some time. He is resting quietly and comfortably and cheerfully, as these many friends will be glad to know.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER.

THE last farewells on earth to Richard Watson Gilder, whose brave spirit passed from his frail body as the night came on Thursday, November 18, were said on Saturday, November 20, as his mortal remains were taken to the old home at Bordentown, N. J., where his father was a country clergyman sixty-five years ago, at the time of Richard's birth.

The funeral services were held in the Church of the Ascension, with whose rector, Rev. Percy S. Grant, he had an intimate association, a church which worthily typifies that combination of the ideal and the practical which Gilder's own life so represented. New York paid worthy tribute to her honored son in the great congregation which gathered for this last good-bye. The presence of a detail of Lafayette Post, G. A. R., recalled that early patriotism which took the young boy as a connoneer in a volunteer artillery company to emergency service at Carlisle and Gettysburg. His fellow authors from the Authors' Club and the American Copyright League were present in numbers, the most noteworthy his fellow-editor and older colleague, Henry M. Alden, editor of Harper's Magazine, between whom and the younger editor of the Century there had been almost life-long friendship without a flaw of rivalry. His fellow members of the Century Club were headed by John Bigelow, its president, now at ninety-two "the first citizen of New York," and many other organizations standing for high ideals in art and letters, brought through their members their tribute of respect and affection. All good causes in New York were indeed represented, for Gilder had responded to the call of each with ready pen and unselfish zeal, but it was those without the church, the great body of tenement dwellers, who had most cause to mourn, for Gilder's greatest service to the city was when to his own surprise he was called to the head of what was thereafter known as the Gilder Tenement-House Commission, whose work he guided and shaped to large result.

In his funeral address, Rev. Percy S. Grant spoke of the lofty services of Gilder, and recalled the spirit of his truly religious life by quoting the stirring verses which he had first seen twenty-five years ago, and through which Gilder's spirit came into his life, "The Song of a Heathen (sojourning in Galilee, A.D. 32)":

If Jesus Christ is a man,—
And only a man,—I say
That of all mankind I cleave to him,
And to him will I cleave alway.

If Jesus Christ is a God,—
And the only God,—I swear
I will follow Him through heaven and hell,
The earth, the sea, and the air!

He mentioned his invitation to Gilder to become a vestryman of the Church of the Ascension, which Gilder had declined, evidently because he could not accept as mere symbols words which had become dogmas. In his sermon to his congregation on Sunday morning Mr. Grant again recurred to the life of Gilder as the exemplar of public service and as one of the pall-bearers, Talcott Williams, had said to him, "truly the Christ-life." He ended this second tribute by reading Gilder's splendid and now timely sonnet:

Call me not dead when I, indeed, have gone
Into the company of the everliving
High and most glorious poets! Let thanksgiving
Rather be made. Say: "He at last hath won
Rest and release, converse supreme and wise,
Music and song and light of immortal faces;
To-day, perhaps, wandering in starry places,
He hath met Keats, and known him by his eyes.
To-morrow (who can say?) Shakespeare may pass,
And our lost friend just catch one syllable
Of that three-centured wit that kept so well;
Or Milton; or Dante, looking on the grass
Thinking of Beatrice, and listening still To chanted hymns that sound from the heavenly hill."

Those who have known Gilder for forty years recall how he came from his editorial relation with the daily press in Newark and his previous incidental business relations, to the editorship of the old Scribner publication, Hours at Home, where he began to make his mark in New York. When Dr. J. G. Holland was invited by the Scribners to start a new magazine, Scribner's Monthly, Gilder became, of course, his associate and managing editor. Helen Hunt was one of the earlier contributors to the magazine, and one day there came with her into the editorial offices and into Gilder's life the young artist, Helena DeKay, daughter of Commander DeKay and granddaughter of Joseph Rodman Drake, one of America's earlier poets, the author of "The Culprit Fay." Gilder's first volume of poems, published in the fall of 1875, "The New Day," expressed in mystic symbolism the grace of his love-making, and when the two were married and the book was published, the decorations in the first edition came from the pencil, as she wrote in a presentation copy, "of a suppressed artist, Helena DeKay." The "After-Song" ending that volume was the summation indeed of this part of Gilder's life:

Through love to light! O, wonderful the way
That leads from darkness to the perfect day!
From darkness and from sorrow of the night
To morning that comes singing o'er the sea.
Through love to light! Through light, O God, to Thee,
Who art the love of love, the eternal light of light!

For the first years they lived in the refitted stable near the old home of the Century Club in East Fifteenth Street, behind the Savings Bank building, "where the barber took care of the flowers," as Gilder wrote "In Lighter Vein," a minor editorial department of the magazine. Here the first floor, behind its wide-opening doors, was the study of the editor, where at "The Old Cabinet" he wrote what corresponded to Mr. Curtis's "Easy Chair" in Harper's, while the upper floor was the studio of Mrs. Gilder; and here their first child, Rodman Drake Gilder, was born. Later they moved to the house in Eighth Street, near Fifth Avenue, purchased by him on a Sailors Snug Harbor ground lease, which throughout his life was known to so many of his fellow workers as the home of peace, good will and good work. It was in the old-fashioned neighborhood where his art associate, A. W. Drake, at the head of the art department of the magazine had gathered his wonderful collections of objects of art, and where many friends—Mark Twain, Mrs. Van Rensselaer, ex-Secretary Fairchild and still others—continued the traditions of Washington Square, made famous by Theodore Winthrop and Henry James.

In this house, despite the increasing turmoil of business around it, he lived almost to the very end. For he spent only a night or two in the new apartment house on Gramercy Park, of which he was one of the co-operative builders, whence he took refuge from the bustle of the moving in the home in West Tenth Street of an old friend, Mrs. Van Rensselaer, where he died.

When under the leadership of Roswell Smith, the magazine was dissociated from the Scribner house and became the Century, the old traditions were continued. On the death of Dr. Holland, Gilder became the editor-in-chief, Robert Underwood Johnson becoming in turn his right-hand as associate editor. From the start it was the chief delight of the promoters of the magazine to discover and develop new writers, as the young girl down South, now famous as Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett. The office kept many well-guarded secrets of authorship, notably that of the identity of Saxe Holme. Harpers and Scribners under Mr. Alden and Mr. Gilder followed the same happy course of sympathizing and helping on young authors, and were rivals only in the good work of developing American periodical literature to the highest possible standards. Gilder was accessible always to the literary aspirant, and no one left his sympathetic presence without encouragement and uplift. In the early days Dr. Holland's house was a social centre, as was also that of Miss Mary L. Booth, of Harper's Bazar, for literary folk, before Stedman, Gilder and others founded the Authors' Club; and Gilder succeeded his early chief as a centre in his home and his office for the literary life of New York. Dr. Holland and Roswell Smith, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge and Frank R. Stockton passed from the office of the Century and its associated magazine, St. Nicholas, but their spirits survived in the younger company which Gilder headed, linking together the elder and the younger generations. Those who knew him best and closest loved him most, but none could know him, even casually, without respect and affection. As a poet, particularly lyricist and sonneteer, he was prolific, always with high aim in good causes; and he was greatly gratified when the Houghton Mifflin house proposed to include his complete poems in their standard household editions of great American poets. The volume was published only last year. That was a worthy and happy recollection of the rank which he had won, and it is gratifying to know that it came to him during the years of his life.

In close association he combined in a remarkable way the virile strength of devotion to great causes with an almost feminine charm and grace of character. In his country home at Four Brooks Farm, in the Berkshires, he gathered about him from summer to summer such friends as Grover Cleveland, Mark Twain, and a great company of others whose friendship was at once tribute to and proof of his great gift of friendship. True, loving and loyal he was, throughout a long and useful life, and those who mourn him mourn with that comfort which comes from the completion of a great life.

HOW TEN MILLION BIBLES A YEAR ARE SOLD.

THE world's best-selling book, according to Walter Prichard Eaton in the December issue of Munsey's Magazine, is the Bible. The total sales of the works of all the most popular authors of the day would not equal the yearly sale of the Christian Scriptures. Each year there are printed seventeen million Protestant Bibles, Testaments and "portions"—such as the Psalms or the separate Gospels—in more than five hundred languages and dialects.

"Of these Bibles, ten millions are published by Bible societies, are sold far below cost, and return no financial profit to anybody. The remaining seven millions are printed commercially, and yield a handsome profit to the publishers. Of the ten million Bibles and parts of Bibles printed and distributed by charity, almost two millions are issued by the American Bible Society, and over seven millions more by similar organizations in Great Britain and Ireland—chief among which is the British and Foreign Bible Society.

"These millions of Bibles and Testaments, sold at a nominal price so that charity is called on to supply the funds for printing them, go to every part of the world. They are issued in every language. They are sold among followers of every faith, and no faith.

"Western civilization has frequently been represented as advancing upon the heathen with the Bible in one hand and a sword in the other. As a matter of fact, the Bible has quite as often gone on ahead, far in advance of Western civilization. In the mystic recesses of China, in the mountains of the Philippines, in the wilds of Africa, the missionary comes to find that the Bible has preceded him, just as later the merchant comes, to find the missionary. The American Bible Society, founded more than ninety years ago, and kindred organizations, have seen to it that the Bible went before the sword, a pioneer of peace.

"In this work of pushing out the frontiers of Christendom by means of the printed word, the actual workmen are almost always natives who have been first converted to Christianity. They are biblical book-agents, with a mission. Often they are heroes. And the stories of their work, of their labors and hardships and humiliations make the annual reports of the Bible societies read like a romance. They are Siamese, Chinese, Japanese, Arabs, Armenians, Turks, Slavs, Mexicans, natives of Cuba, of the Philippines, of Peru, of the islands of the sea. They are also Americans, working among the immigrants, in city slums, at the mines.

"They are called always by the same name—colporteurs. And the story of colportage is a romance of faith, devotion, and tireless labor.

"The object of the colporteur is always the same—to sell as many Bibles as possible to those who do not possess the book, and to induce the buyers to read it. He sells the Bible, or separate portions of it, because long experience has taught that if it is given away, the recipient does not place the same value upon it, and is not nearly so likely to read it. Human nature is the same in Siam as in Salem, Massachusetts, in the Philippines as in Philadelphia.

"The colporteur gets a small commission on his sales, and a small salary; he must live. But the work is so trying, the pay so small, the danger still so great in many places, that only a strong faith in his calling, a devotion to the Christian religion like that of the missionaries themselves, would keep a colporteur at his task. The colporteurs are the nameless and unsung pioneers of Christendom. . . .

"Many qualities are required of the colporteur, of course, besides devotion. Perhaps the greatest of these is tact. It is his task to sell a religious book to people generally of alien faith, and often hostile. He must be quick and ready to refute objections, to turn aside hostility, to keep his patience, his temper, his humility, to appeal to the necessary racial motives, to understand the characters of those with whom he is dealing. This explains, of course, why the colporteurs are chiefly natives of the lands where they work.

"The colporteur must also know the Bible from cover to cover himself, be able to explain it, to expound it. He must be something of a preacher—an evangelist. When all these things are considered, the number of good colporteurs to be found in Siam, in China, in Korea, and such other lands, is amazing. . . .

"That the Bible is sold, not given away, has seemed to many earnest people a wrong. But the wisdom of charging a small price has been again and again vindicated. A short time ago, in Korea, it was noticed that the call for Gospels in one section was all out of proportion to the call from the rest of the country. A colporteur investigated. Men and women were buying Testaments literally by the score. He asked why.

"'We use them to paper our rooms with,' was the reply. 'They are cheaper than any other paper we can buy.'

"The price of Bibles in that section was advanced. . . .

"In Korea, in 1907, sixty-four native colporteurs sold nearly fifty-eight thousand volumes. The Catholic missionaries have been trying for more than a century to get a footing in Korea. The Protestants did not enter the country till a quarter of a century ago. But recent political events have suddenly changed the entire complexion of the case, and at the present time Korea is yielding rapidly to Christian influence. . . .

"But the active work of spreading the circulation of the Bible is not confined to foreign lands. Great quantities are distributed yearly in America among the immigrants, on landing. Regular colporteurs are employed among the negroes of the South, the foreigners in our slums, the men at the great mining centers, and in general in all outlying districts. And even Coney Island—gay, frivolous, go-as-you-please Coney Island—is a field for active work.

"The Bible-stand at Coney is on Surf Avenue, the main thoroughfare, and it is in charge of a young man from Brooklyn, who can 'bark' for the Bible as entertainingly as any Luna Park ballyhoo. He 'sizes up' his crowds, he picks out a man or woman or girl, and shoots an appropriate text. He sells Bibles for twenty-three cents, Testaments for six cents, and a single Gospel for two cents. He distributes thousands of cards reading:

"'Satan trembles when he sees Scriptures sold as cheap as these.'

"This is meeting Coney at its own game, and the young man sells a hundred dollars' worth of Bibles a month.

"As has been said, the tongues in which the Bible is printed are legion—more than five hundred. It is the one universal text-book in the world. The work of translation is always arduous, and men have given their lives to it, in all parts of the globe.

"Of course, the object always is to translate the book into language as accurate and idiomatic as possible, to make it as much a model of Arabic, or of some Chinese dialect, as it is of English. To this end native scholars give their aid. In some dialects a written language has practically had to be invented. Father Clapp, when he made his Igorot version for the Philippines, had to do this, with the aid of native boys.

"Native mission-boys on the island of Nauru, in the Marshall group, assisted in the translation of the New Testament, recently completed, into the Nauru language. The book was translated by a German, the type set by natives, the presswork done on a press furnished by Hawaiian Christians, the paper supplied by the American Bible Society, and the binding done in San Francisco. This was truly an international Bible. . . ."

OBITUARY NOTES.

HENRY S. BONER, superintendent of the Lutheran Publication Society, Philadelphia, died on Wednesday, November 17, after a faithful service of thirty-two years.

DEXTER SMITH, seventy-one years old, one of the best known musical critics in the country and the author of several songs which had a wide popularity, died at his home in Boston November 30. Mr. Smith was born in Salem, Mass., in 1838. Among his songs were "Put Me in My Little Bed" and "Cross and Crown."

CLINTON B. FISK died of appendicitis in San Antonio, Tex., on November 28, aged thirty-eight. Mr. Fisk was formerly editor on the New York Evening Journal and The American, but ill health forced him to give up active newspaper work, though after he went to California he interested himself in the advertising business. He was born in St. Louis, Mo. Several years ago he was much interested in theatrical enterprises. He was buried Tuesday, November 30, at Coldwater, Mich.

JOHN BANISTER TABB, a priest in the Catholic Church, and well known as the writer of short poems in many periodicals, died at St. Charles College, Baltimore, on Friday, November 19, where for many years he had been teacher of English. Father Tabb was born in Virginia, March 22, 1845. At the outbreak of the war between the States he entered the Confederate navy and was prisoner of war from 1864 to 1865. He taught music in Baltimore and later taught in St. Paul's School, Baltimore, and in Racine College, Michigan. In 1872 he entered the Catholic Church. For nearly two years he had been totally blind. Several small volumes of his poems have been published; a complete collection is yet to be made.

MRS. RANDALL DIEHL, who died on Monday, November 30, was born in Oswego County, N. Y., and received her education at Falley Seminary, in Fulton, a village fifteen miles from her home. She was twice married. Her first husband was Dr. Randall, of Fulton, who was killed in the war between the States. Upon his death Mrs. Randall became a teacher of elocution and later a writer and lecturer on that subject. Her marriage with Dr. Israel S. Diehl, at one time United States Consul at Java, was followed by a year in Europe. During the year's travel Dr. Diehl made a collection of coins, costumes and curios. After his death Mrs. Randall-Diehl presented the coins to the Smithsonian Institution, Washington. Mrs. Randall-Diehl published The Quarterly Elocutionist and founded and published The American Shakespeare Magazine. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Jessica Mazzanovich, of New York City.

WILLIAM M. LAFFAN, proprietor and editor of the New York Sun, died November 19 at his home in Lawrence, L. I. He was born on January 22, 1848, in Dublin, Ireland. He studied medicine, to which art he subsequently rendered great service. When he completed his early studies he became artist to the Pathological Society of Dublin. Attracted by the possibilities of journalism he went to San Francisco in 1868 and went to work as a reporter. He was the first city editor of the San Francisco Chronicle; leaving that he became managing editor of the San Francisco Bulletin. In 1870 he went to Baltimore, where he worked as reporter and editor until he became the editor and half owner of the Daily Bulletin. For a time Mr. Laffan left newspaper work to fill the position of general passenger agent of the Long Island Railroad, but returned to journalism in 1877, as general writer for The Sun, of which he later became proprietor. In 1881 he became art editor for Harper & Brothers, and he remained in that capacity and as the agent of Harper & Brothers in London for three years. He became a director of the company. In 1884 he became publisher of The Sun. He started The Evening Sun in 1887. Mr. Laffan had been the intimate friend and associate of Charles A. Dana. In 1900 he purchased from the Dana estate its interests in The Sun and was elected president of the Sun Printing and Publishing Association. As the head of The Sun Mr. Laffan maintained the closest and most direct connection with its affairs. The work of the individuals of the staff was perfectly known to him and quietly appraised.

He wrote constantly for the editorial page. Outside of journalism his work as a lover and student of art occupied most of his time. He modelled in clay, painted in oils and water colors and etched for his own entertainment and that of his friends. He was especially interested in Oriental porcelains, an interest which was aroused by an early visit to the Far East. He edited in 1905 the "Catalogue of the Chinese Porcelain in the Morgan Collection at the Metropolitan Museum of Art." With S. W. Bushell he edited "Chinese Porcelain in the Metropolitan Museum of Art," which appeared in 1906. In the same year Mr. Laffan edited "Oriental Porcelain," which was published by D. Appleton & Co. He had written "American Wood Engravers," which was published by Harper & Brothers in 1883. He was conversant with Egyptian excavations and followed keenly discoveries in the potter's art made in Chaldea and Mesopotamia. On all topics connected with Far Eastern art his curiosity was searching. He was accurately familiar with antique art and the art of Europe from the Middle Ages until the end of the Renaissance. Nothing, as his friends knew, that seemed beautiful was alien to him. His acquaintance with collectors was wide and his advice was sought constantly. He was the confidential adviser in art affairs of J. Pierpont Morgan, Henry Walters, of Baltimore, and other collectors.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

J. M. DENT, the well-known English publisher, is on a visit in this country.

THE first issue, dated November, of the long heralded Monthly Book Review has just been brought out by W. M. Clayton, Inc., 43 W. Twenty-seventh Street, New York. Charles Hanson Towne and Temple Scott are contributing editors, H. Calkins is managing editor, W. M. Clayton is president, and Fremont Rider is secretary and treasurer. There are notes of miscellaneous character, with illustrations; reviews of four books of the month; brief notes of books by Charles Hanson Towne, and an annotated list of books. The magazine, which has a bright color, is intended for circulation in imprint edition by booksellers. Fifty cents a year, ten cents single copies.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ARTHUR GILMAN, author of "My Cranford," has been elected member of the London Society of Authors. He is spending, as usual, the winter at Atlantic City.

J. T. TROWBRIDGE, whose "A Pair of Madcaps" is a popular book in this season's juvenile list published by Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., sailed December 1 on the Romanie to spend another winter in Italy.

PAUL DANA corrects the statement that William Laffan was the founder of The Evening Sun. He was no more the founder he asserts than any other of the men working with Charles A. Dana when The Evening Sun was founded.

MRS. OONA H. BALL has just compiled an anthology of prose and verse in praise of Oxford, which will be issued immediately by Sidgwick & Jackson, London, under the title of "The Oxford Garland." The volume will contain a photogravure frontispiece after J. W. King.

COLONEL THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON, whose volume of essays, entitled "Carlyle's Laugh, and Other Surprises," has just been published by Houghton Mifflin Co., has been elected Honorary Foreign Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature of the United Kingdom.

NEWS comes from St. Petersburg that Maxim Gorky's comrades of the Social Democratic or Revolutionary Party of Russia disapprove of his life of ease and comfort under warm Italian skies. He has been arraigned for a tendency to good living and is to be excluded from the party.

WILLIAM WATSON came to the United States on December 3. He authorized the following to be printed in the New York Times: "I am told that a storm has been aroused against me in America. Therefore I came to face it." This is thought to be the direct outcome of the controversy over his poem, "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue." Mr. Watson is much annoyed over the verses appearing in a New York paper calling him a coward and issuing what he thinks is a threatening invitation to visit America. He denies the charges in that poem as absolutely false.

CRITTENDEN MARRIOTT, whose novel, "The Isle of Dead Ships," issued by the Lippincotts, is attracting so much attention, has sailed all around the Sargasso Sea, in the middle of which the isle is located. He first heard of it in sailors' yarns when a cadet at the U. S. Naval Academy, but did not see it until eight years later in 1893, when he was returning to the United States from the interior of South Africa, where he had tramped 1600 miles, and had just missed taking part in the Jamieson rail on the Transvaal. Only a few months later, as Associated Press correspondent, Mr. Marriott again passed the sea, this time on the dynamite cruiser Nichteroy, which had been fitted out in New York by the government of Brazil to put down the naval rebellion. Five years later, just before the Spanish war, Mr. Marriott was near the Sargasso Sea once more. He had gone to Cuba for the Chicago Record and was carrying rebel mail to Key West from General Gomez's camp in return for news supplied him. His companion, Mr. Crosby, was shot and killed, and he himself was arrested but managed to get released. The next year, again as Associated Press correspondent, he accompanied General Miles when that officer captured Porto Rico, and on his way north with Captain Sigsbee again sighted, probably for the last time, the mass of weed that rings round the mysterious Isle of Dead Ships.

DRAMATIZED NOVELS AND NOVELIZED PLAYS.

THE extent to which fiction and the stage are being associated through dramatized novels and novelized plays may be seen by a glance at the records of a single house. On the stage in England and America at the present time are eleven plays, which are represented in some form on the Harper book list. Among these "Trilby," now being played by Sir Herbert Tree, was dramatized from the novel. So were "The Right of Way," "The Barrier," "The Spoilers," "The Awakening of Helena Richie" and "Arsene Lupin." Novelized from the play were "The Witching Hour" and "The Squaw Man." Printed in book covers, but retaining the text in play form, are three others: "The Servant in the House," "An Englishman's Home" and "The Man from Home." Within the next few weeks two other novels to be seen in play form will add to the list—Mr. Harben's "Ann Boyd," which the Shuberts will produce, and "The Inner Shrine." Among the writers of all these, it appears that only one did the work himself unaided, Augustus Thomas, author of "The Witching Hour."

It asked no favors from tyrants or knaves, Oppressing and sending poor men to their graves. This book is in press, and will soon be complete, By FRENCH, No. 78 Washington Street.

[Littell's Living Age.]

A MAGAZINE is a publication in which in September you can read in the October number about things that happened in July.—Albany Journal.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

BAKER & TAYLOR Co. have imported "Fighting Ships," 1909, by Frederick F. Jane, (twelfth year of issue.)

JOHN LANE COMPANY announce an interesting biography in the "Life of W. J. Fox," by the late Richard Garnett, finished by Edward Garnett, the rise of a man of low birth to a seat in Parliament; also, a novel by Gilbert K. Chesterton, "The Ball and the Cross."

THE regular annual meeting of the Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers will be held at the Hotel Breslin, Room 410, New York City, on Tuesday, December 7, at half-past seven. The election of officers and other business matters will have the attention of the brethren, who are urgently requested to attend.

HARPER & BROTHERS have taken over from the Outing Company "Florida Enchantments," by A. W. and Julian A. Dimock, an illustrated volume descriptive of outdoor Florida life as the adventurous authors encountered it on cruise and tramp. It is doubtful whether the conspicuous charms of the Flower State have ever been better displayed than in this volume.

B. W. DODGE & Co. have published a charming love story by Mary Farley, entitled "The Canvas Door. Fantastic in its conception of the reincarnation theme, it is nevertheless so exquisite in style, so subtly clever in execution, as to carry a certain conviction, while the characterization of Allegra—whimsically feminine and altogether charming Allegra—strikes a keynote in the new season's fiction.

NEWSON & COMPANY, New York City, will publish in December "Panama and the Canal," by Alfred B. Hall and Clarence L. Chester. The book is designed as a supplementary reader for public and private schools, but the text is so exhaustive and authoritative that it is an important addition to the bibliography of the literature of the Isthmus of Panama from the days of Columbus until now.

P. BLAKISTON'S SON & COMPANY, Philadelphia, are building a six-story fireproof warehouse immediately in the rear of their present office building on Walnut Street. It is to be a plain business building of reinforced concrete, mushroom construction, including all the latest improvements which will facilitate business and minimize the risk of fire. The first floor will be used for shipping, and extensive vaults in the basement will accommodate the firm's vast collection of blocks, plates and drawings.

THE case of The Book Supply Company, of Chicago, which filed a bill for a temporary injunction against David B. Clarkson to restrain him from continuing his present method of advertising "The Calling of Dan Matthews" among what he claims to be bankrupt stocks and publishers' overstocks, was heard by Judge Pettit, of the Superior Court, on November 9. The court denied the injunction. Neither the Book Supply Company nor its selling agent, the Reilly & Britton Company, have ever sold any copies of "The Calling of Dan Matthews" to Mr. Davidson.

CHARLES A. DITMAS, 350 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has now on the press "Historic Homesteads of Kings County," in a de luxe edition of 500 signed and numbered copies, containing twenty sketches of the old homesteads of Kings County and a genealogical review of the people who lived in them and their descendants, handsomely illustrated with twenty-one hand-colored photogravures tipped on. To the first subscribers the publisher will present a copy of "Brooklyn's Garden," a volume of hand-colored photogravures of picturesque Flatbush and vicinity.

THE new novel by Gertrude Atherton will be ready, it is announced by the Macmillan Company, for publication in February. The character of the book is still something of a secret, however, for Mrs. Atherton is unwilling to have it described in advance. It is understood, nevertheless, that the forthcoming work will be largely cosmopolitan in tone. This is hardly surprising in view of the fact that Mrs. Atherton has long enjoyed wide popularity in England. In fact, on his recent visit to this country, Lord Northcliffe, the great English publisher, declared that she was more read in England than any other American novelist.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready "The Speeches of William Jennings Bryan," in two volumes, with a biographical introduction by Mary Baird Bryan, his wife. Mrs. Bryan's introductory sketch comprises the most authoritative and probably the most interesting account of his life that has anywhere been printed. It has often been said that Mr. Bryan has spoken to a greater number of people than any other man who ever lived. Whether we agree with Mr. Bryan politically or not, we cannot dispute his wonderful ability as an orator. His speeches are eagerly heard and read by thousands of people everywhere.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have issued the following new publications during the past week: "The Tribunal of Terror," a study of Paris in 1793-1795, by G. Lenotre; a new volume, (the third,) of Gladys Davidson's "Stories from the Operas," and a de luxe edition of "Sintram and His Companions." In connection with the recent publication of Sir Ernest Shackleton's "The Heart of the Antarctic," it is interesting to note that the "launching" was made simultaneously in eight different languages—an unusual occurrence even for a book of such great importance. This work is having a record-breaking sale in England, and the Lippincotts report that the interest in this country is greater than their most sanguine expectations.

SIR GILBERT PARKER'S novels in America will hereafter bear the imprint of Harper & Brothers. The publishers announce that seven titles have been acquired from the Macmillan Company, Houghton Mifflin Company and Doubleday, Page & Co., namely, "The Lane That Had No Turning," "The Battle of the Strong," "An Adventurer of the North," "A Lover's Diary," "Pierre and His People," "A Romany of the Snows," and "When Valmond Came to Pontiac." Harper & Brothers were already the publishers of "The Right of Way," "A Ladder of Swords" and "The Weavers," and these, together with the collection of short stories by Sir Gilbert just published, "Northern Lights," make eleven of this author's books to bear their imprint.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "The New North," by Agnes Deans Cameron, which describes the travels of two women down the Mackenzie River from Athabasca, landing in Alberta, Canada, to the Arctic Ocean, and back by way of the Peace River. There is a considerable amount of statistical data relating to the agricultural value of the region, and the whole is illustrated with original photographs. They have also brought out "Girl and Woman," by Caroline Latimer, formerly instructor in biology at the Woman's College, Baltimore, in which is taken up the subject of the building of the woman, beginning with the early girlhood and continuing through the various stages of development up to the final period of full-grown womanhood.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have now ready the Harrison Fisher gift-book for this year, appropriately called "Harrison Fisher's American Beauties." It contains twenty-one full-page drawings in his popular manner, all printed in full color. The elaborate decorations by Earl Stetson Crawford are also printed in full color, so that the volume presents throughout an even and uninterrupted brilliance and gayety. Each picture, of course, is the head of a beautiful woman, for that is Mr. Fisher's frankly chosen field. "They talk to me about always printing pretty women," he said in a recent interview. "Why shouldn't I? What is more artistic? The public cries for them, and the public generally knows what it wants. History is made up of the difficulties which have arisen from the supply of pretty women not equalling the demand."

H. M. CALDWELL COMPANY have just ready two attractive gift-books for men in Joseph Knight's "A Smoker's Reveries," a collection of English and American verse, by many hands, all turned to proclaiming the glory of smoking, and "Widows' Wisdom," by Ninon Traver Flickenstein, illustrated by Clare Victor Dwiggin. There is no reason why a woman should not read either book, but as widows seldom waste their wit on their own sex it is to be supposed that Mme. Ninon has at least one eye on man even when she ostensibly advises women. Besides, does she not tell women that although a woman's friendship may suffice in every-day troubles, in a great crisis only the friendship of a man will sustain them, e.g., she might have said, Adam sustaining Eve in her "great crisis." However, the little book is amusing of its kind, and the pictures are in Mr. Dwiggin's best style.

FORBES & Co., Chicago, will publish on December 10 a book of college stories entitled "Maroon Tales," by Will J. Cuppy. Various phases of university life are introduced into a book full of the healthy and spirited action of youth. They will publish shortly a life of the late Governor John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, written by Frank A. Day and Theodore M. Knappen, who were among the Governor's closest associates throughout his political career—Mr. Day being credited with the "discovery" of the Governor as political "timber" in bringing about his first gubernatorial nomination. In writing the book the authors have received the co-operation of Mrs. Johnson, who has furnished interesting pictures and manuscripts. Therefore, it may be expected that the book will be an intimate portrait of the man who by sheer force of personality and character endeared himself to the people of his State, irrespective of party, and became a national figure.

B. W. HUEBSCH, New York City, has just brought out a work entitled "The Substance of Socialism," by John Spargo, which is divided into three sections—the Socialist Hope, Private Property and Personal Liberty in the Socialist State, and the Moral Value of Class Consciousness; "Evolutionary Socialist—a Criticism and Affirmation," by Edward Bernstein, the leader of the Revisionist movement in German Socialism, a work regarded by Socialists as second in importance only to Marx's "Das Kapital;" "The Song of Songs," by Hermann Sudermann, the great dramatist's first novel in fifteen years, a work which he has spent three years in writing and which has been the sensation of literary Europe for the past year; also, "The Dragnet," by Evelyn Snead Barnett, literary editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, which, besides presenting all the elements of a thrilling mystery, detective and love story, contains a powerful study of "Trusts" in American business life.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY announce the following important books for children: "The Irish Fairy Book," by Alfred Percival Graves, illustrated and illuminated in red and black, one of the first collections ever published of fairy tales from Celtic lore. Tudor Jenks contributes another volume to his young people's series in "Chemistry for Young People," illustrated. "Birds of the World for Young People," with lithographic illustrations in colors, presents interesting descriptions of most of the feathered folk on the earth. It is by Charles R. Knight and Ella Hardcastle. "The Boys' Book of Airships," by Harry Delacombe, treats the entire subject of aviation down to the fall of 1909, and includes the recent meeting at Rheims. The new books in the Glue Series, by George A. and Clara A. Williams, are: "The Farm That Glue Made," "The Games That Glue Played," and "Rip Van Winkle;" in The Children's Theatre Series, "The Puzzle Pictures of Animals to Cut and Glue," and "The Tracing and Coloring Book of Animals."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY, apropos of the visit to this country by Dr. Julius Richter, editor of "Die Evangelischen Missionen," will bring out "A History of Protestant Missions in the Near East," which discusses the progress of missions in Asia Minor, Persia, Arabia, Syria and Northern Africa. They will also publish this month a little brochure by Dr. James M. Buckley, editor of The Christian Advocate, entitled "The Wrong and Peril of Woman Suffrage;" also, "The Bible in Shakespeare" and "The Religion of Ruskin," by William Burgess. The former of these is an exhaustive and careful study of the language, characters and ideas of Shakespeare in the light of Scriptural diction. Shakespeare, it will be remembered, was at his best in those same formative years from 1604 to 1611, when the Bible in the King James Version was being translated, and from then on until his death in 1616. All students of Shakespeare and the Bible have commented on the similarities and the resemblances of some of the characters. But not before has such a careful and painstaking study been made of the two. Arrangements in parallel columns, classifications and indices add to the value of the volume from the students' standpoint.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY have just ready "Tracks and Tracking," by Josef Brunner, the result of over twenty years of study on the part of the author, who describes the habits and haunts of wild game by the unique method of interpreting their tracks and signs. Thus, by means of their trails, the age, sex, speed, mood and destination of woodland creatures are indicated, the text being supplemented by a long series of descriptive illustrations. They will add shortly the following titles to their list of outdoor books: "Golf," by Marshall Whitlatch, in which the author aims "to teach the player how to teach himself rather than how to imitate the methods of others;" "Camp Cookery," by Horace Kephart, author of "Camping and Woodcraft," a manual of information regarding cooking in camp, on the trail or on the water, together with various recipes for dishes, etc.; "How to Study Birds," by Herbert K. Job, author of "Sport of Bird Study," a volume of practical information amplified by a series of one hundred or more wild bird photographs taken from the author's collection; also, "Fishing Kits and Equipment," by Samuel G. Camp, a handbook by an expert on such practical matters as the selection of rods, reels, lines, leaders, lures, bait, etc., for fresh-water fishing.

ALLEN, LANE & SCOTT, Philadelphia, have just published a reprint of Émeric Crucé's "Le Nouveau Cynée," giving the French text, reprinted from the original edition of 1623, with an English translation and an introduction by Thomas Willing Balch, author of "The Alaska Frontier." In this rare book the author, Émeric Crucé, a French scholar, proposed in the year 1623 the establishment at Venice of an assembly composed of ambassadors of all the nations of the world who should arrange in a peaceful way international disputes. The composition of this assemblage was to be world-wide, embracing the nations of the Orient as well as the Occident. His plan for maintaining international peace—a forerunner of the present Hague International Court—was commented upon by Leibniz and other notable publicists of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and by United States Senator Sumner and President Woolsey, of Yale University, in more recent years. In "Le Nouveau Cynée," Émeric Crucé treats of other things besides the maintenance of international peace. He discusses religion, the great law of money, (generally known as Gresham law,) the need for a uniform system in the world of weights and measures, international commerce, and many other things besides. The original text and the translation are preceded by an introduction, in which the editor shows the influence of "Le Nouveau Cynée" on the development of international arbitration.

THE announcement of the sudden death of Edgar O. Silver, on November 18, called together a large number of his friends, including representatives of nearly all the school-book publishing houses, at a meeting held in the rooms of the Aldine Association, New York City, on the following day. W. E. Pulsifer, of D. C. Heath & Co.; H. E. Hayes, of Newson & Co.; Charles E. Merrill, of Charles E. Merrill Co.; George A. Plympton, of Ginn & Company; Major Charles L. Patton, of University Pub. Co.; H. L. Ambrose, of American Book Co.; Frank D. Beattys, of Frank D. Beattys & Co.; James H. McGraw, of McGraw Publishing Co.; Charles E. Mills, of Longmans, Green & Co.; Joseph J. Little, of J. J. Little & Ives Co.; Fleming H. Revell, of Fleming H. Revell Co.; Frank H. Dodd, of Dodd, Mead & Co.; L. L. Jackson and E. W. Fielder, of D. Appleton & Co., and others spoke in terms of the highest appreciation of Mr. Silver's character and ability, of his honorable and remarkably successful career as a publisher, and of the warm feeling of admiration and respect entertained for him by all who came within the circle of his influence. A committee of three was appointed and instructed to embody in appropriate form the sentiments expressed at this gathering and to send a copy of the same to the family of Mr. Silver and to the press. The report of the committee was as follows:

Mr. Edgar O. Silver, the announcement of whose untimely death on November 18, calls us together, has been a school book publisher for about twenty years.

During this comparatively short period he has, by his great ability, high integrity, untiring energy and dauntless courage, as president of the publishing house of Silver, Burdett & Company, built up a large and prosperous business and has won for himself the admiration and respect of his competitors.

Mr. Silver was a man of many and varied interests and activities. Any cause which promised in a practical way to promote the material, intellectual and moral well-being of his fellows was sure to have his sympathies and to many such causes he gave generously loyal service and financial support.

Both as a publisher and as a citizen Mr. Silver was a man of the highest ideals which, in the strain and stress of business competition and in the other relations and activities of a very busy life, he never forgot.

As a member of the Board of Trustees of Brown University, of which he was an alumnus, and as a director in many religious, educational and philanthropic organizations in which he was deeply interested, his sound judgment, faithful service and unfailing courtesy have endeared him to his associates, who unite with us in lamenting his death.

CHARLES L. PATTON,
JAMES H. MCGRAW,
Committee.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplaced advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

✉ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

✉ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

AT MODERATE COST

EVERYONE in the business who has occasion to hunt up information about books needs constantly a good index to publishers' catalogues. The lack of one is not only aggravating, but oftentimes exasperating. While no single alphabet contains information about all books in print, the two latest volumes of covering the period from January 1, 1900, to January 1, 1908, is by far the best guide now obtainable at moderate cost. During these years most titles now in active demand were either first published or were reissued in new editions and are recorded, consequently, in these volumes.

The two sell at $7.50 each, bound in half morocco, and will be sent on approval to anyone looking for a useful book-finding help.

CHARLES LIVINGSTON BULL

Large 12mo. Decorated cover and wrapper from designs by Bull. 320 pages. $1.50

THE BOSTON TRANSCRIPT Says:

"There is enough of sport to make the story entertaining, enough of adventure to make it exciting, and enough information about natural history and the life along the coast of Florida to make it illuminating, and it is written in such excellent style that it may cheerfully be recommended to boys in the upper grades of the grammar schools."

WESTERN TRADE JOURNAL:

"Among those (books for boys) none is more worthy of favorable mention than 'By Reef and Trail.'"

BOOKSELLER, NEWSDEALER AND STATIONER:

"'By Reef and Trail' will appeal to every boy with any sporting instinct or love of open."

WAGNER'S HEROES

By CONSTANCE MAUD

Profusely Illustrated in Black and White and Colors. Cloth, Octavo, Artistically Stamped in Colors. Price, 50 cents.

These stories are for our young folks and not written for Wagnerites or any other learned persons.

These are just simple tales about men and women who once really lived on the earth and about whom the greatest poet-musician wrote in that wonderful music-language of his which speaks straight to the heart.
